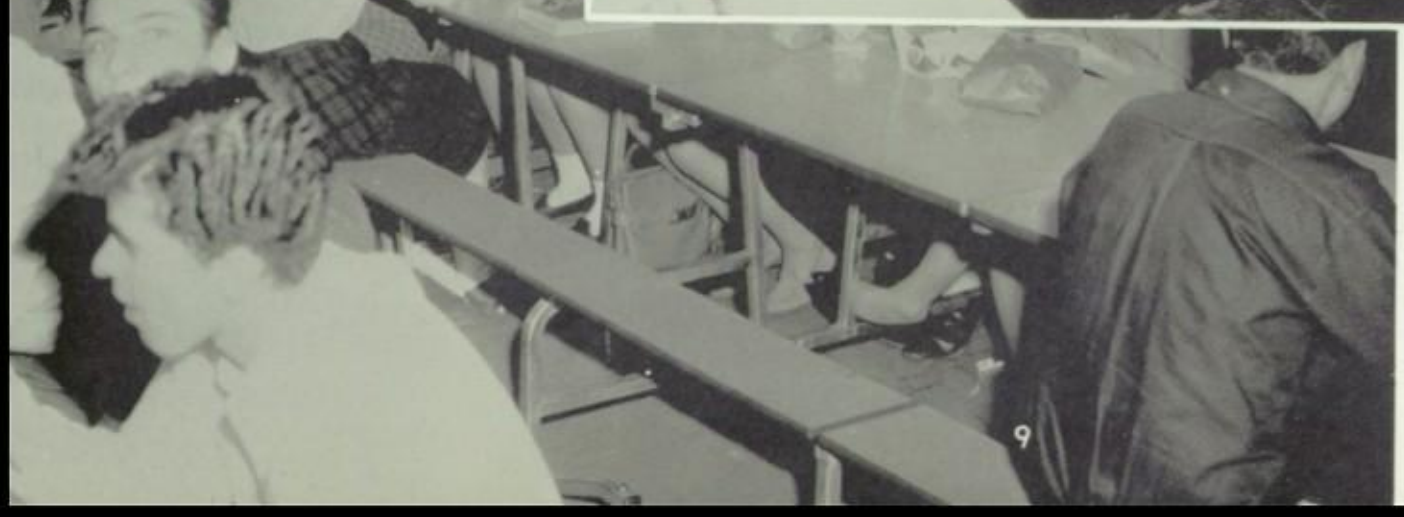
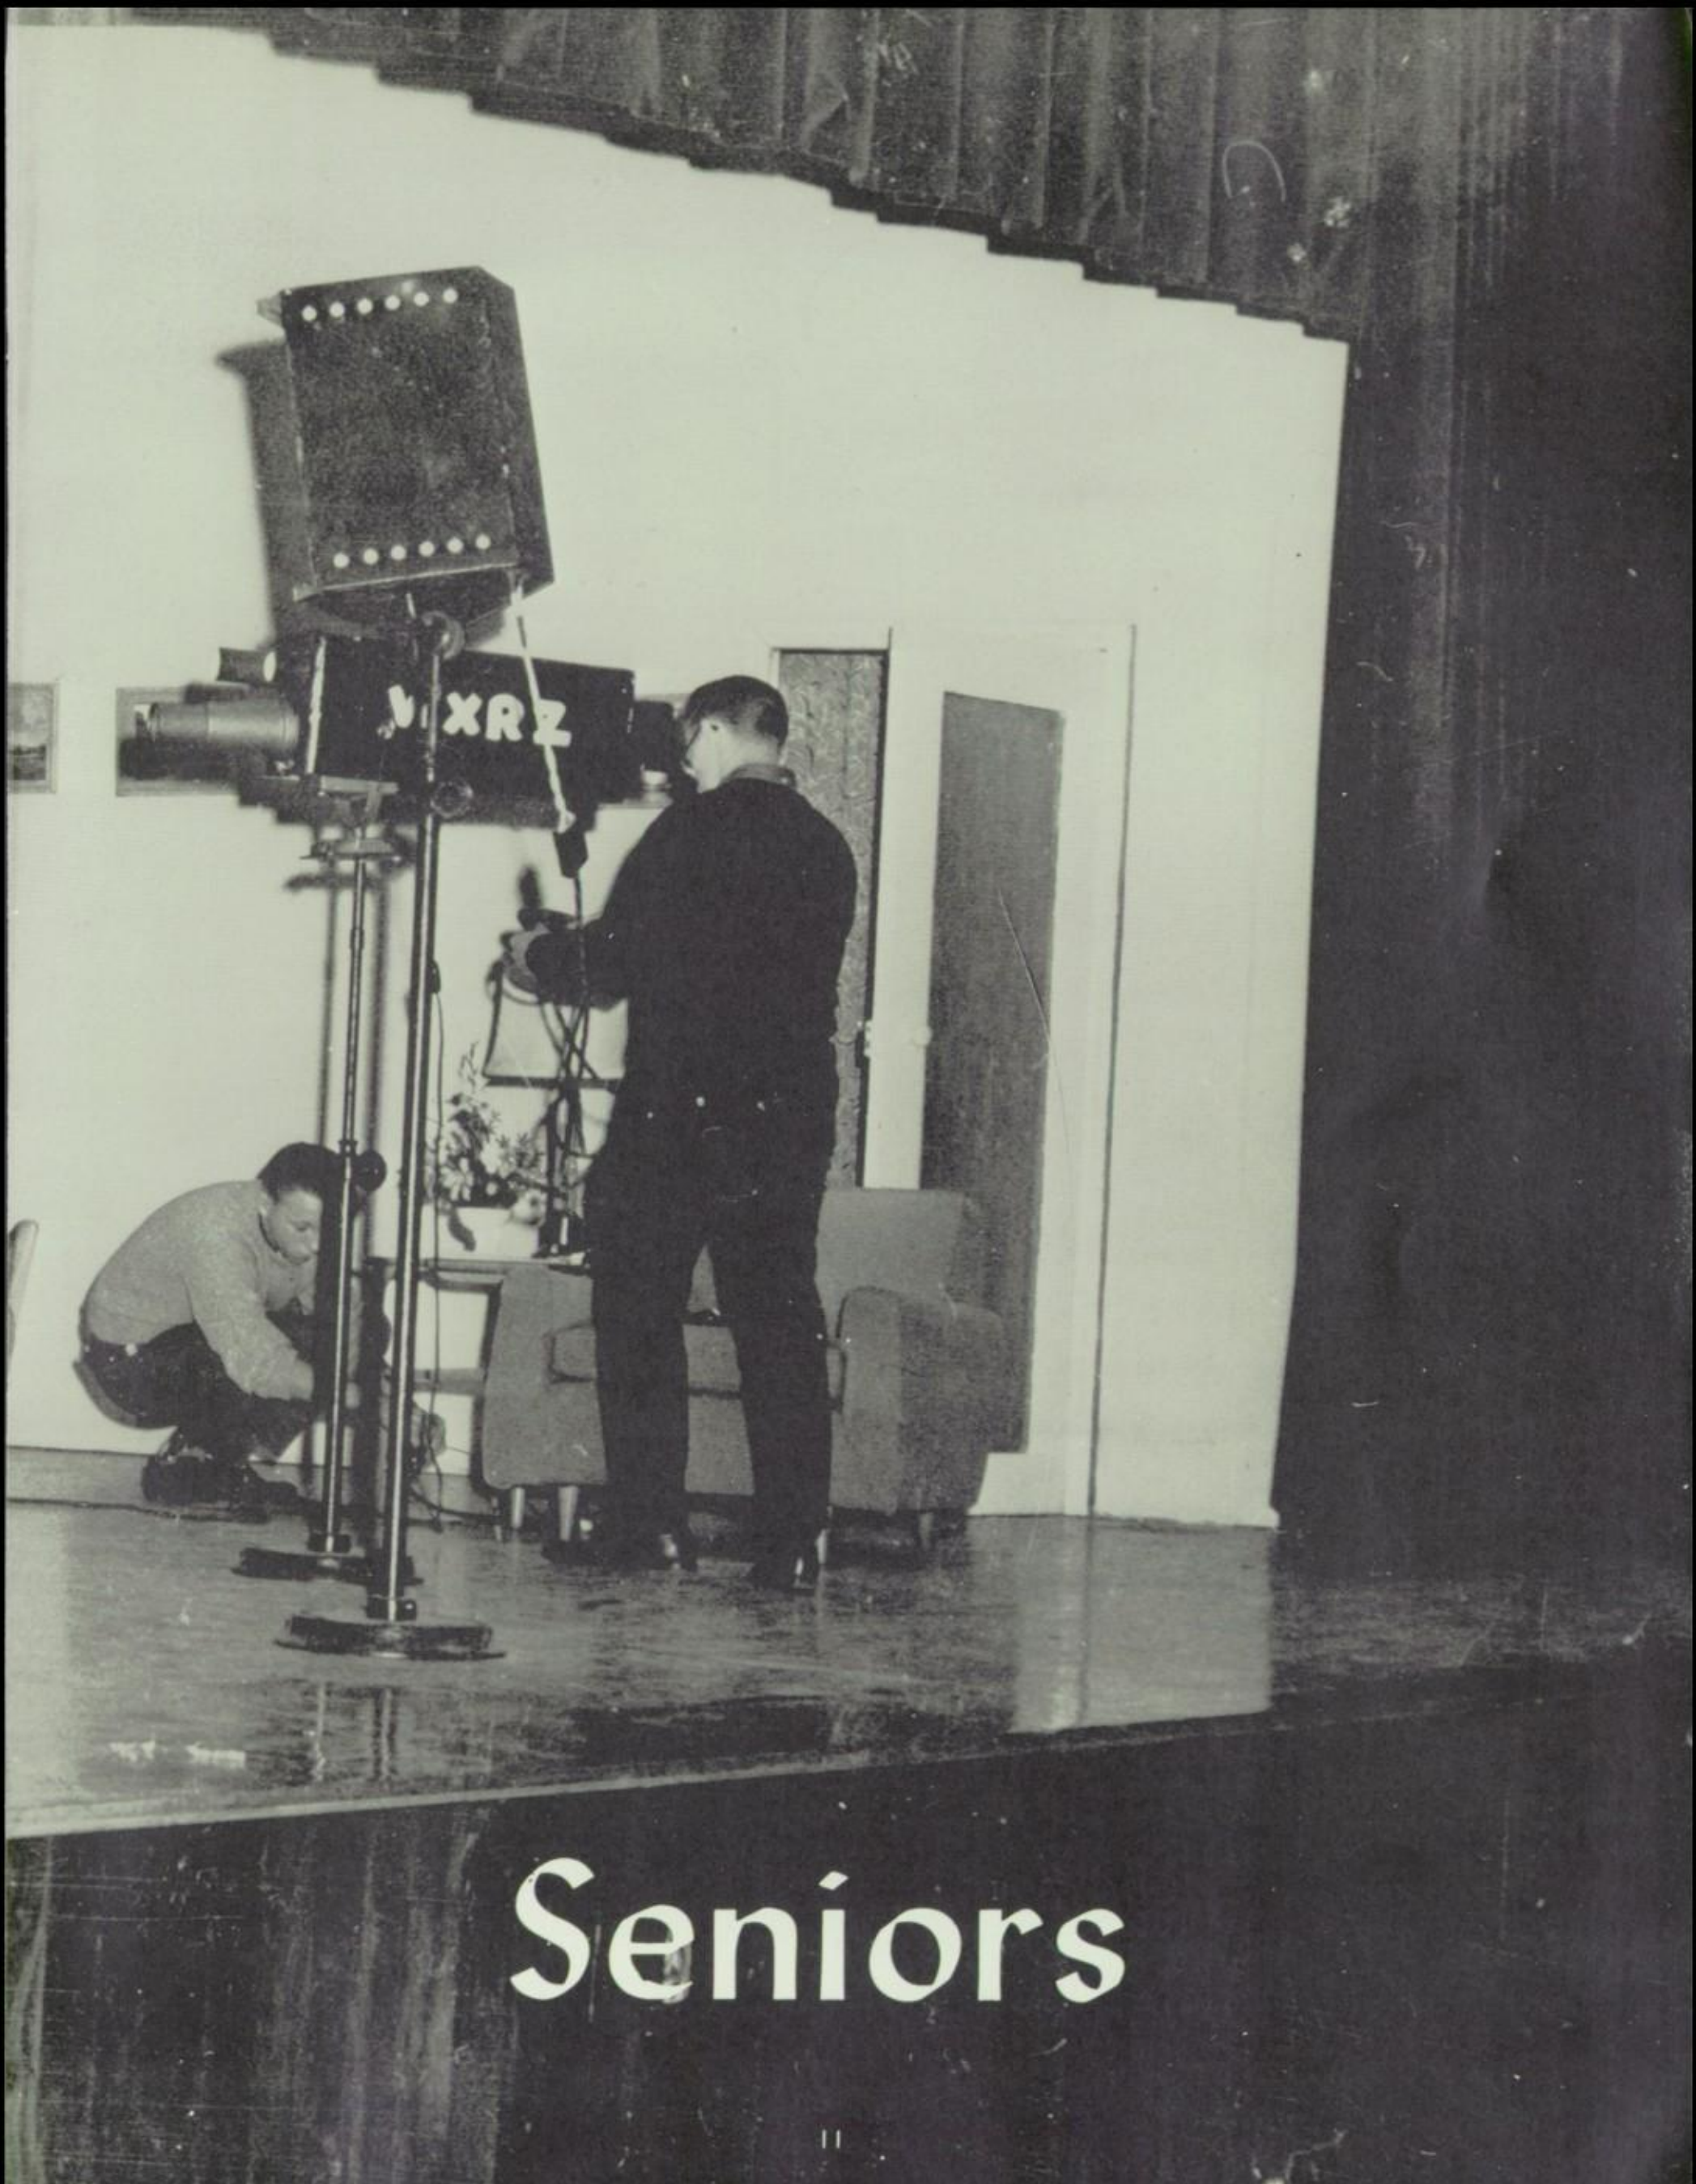
Dedication

The senior class of 1964 owes a special debt of gratitude to Mr. Campbell. In addition to serving as advisor to a senior home room, he very graciously stepped into the time-consuming position of yearbook sponsor. With an unfailing sense of humor and willingness to listen and encourage, he has guided us through a busy year. As a token of our appreciation, we wish to dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Campbell—advisor and friend.



ACT II



Seniors

Senior Class

OFFICERS:
Dan Schofield, Donna Arture,
Al Lovgren, Patti McMann.

If someone were to ask what it's like to be a senior, I'd say the rush of activity and the nagging need for a little black datebook—the consumption of untold tons of peanuts while stumbling through Senior play practice—the feeling upon entering Junior High hall of being a mack truck in a sea of Volkswagens—the long aching hours of sports practice after school and the bite of the air when the opening whistle sounds—the three-question P.O.D. test that takes all period—the shock of tragedy one cold November afternoon and gay festivities of warm May night—the cold tremors on College Board morning—the exultation when accepted —the tedium of a study hall—laughter with friends—the worry about where all that money is ever going to come from—the relief when it does—the unwelcome, unwanted, inescapable feeling of nostalgia at the sight of a graduation robe—and then I'd say, that isn't the half of it, or the third of it, or the quarter of it; and then I'd smile!

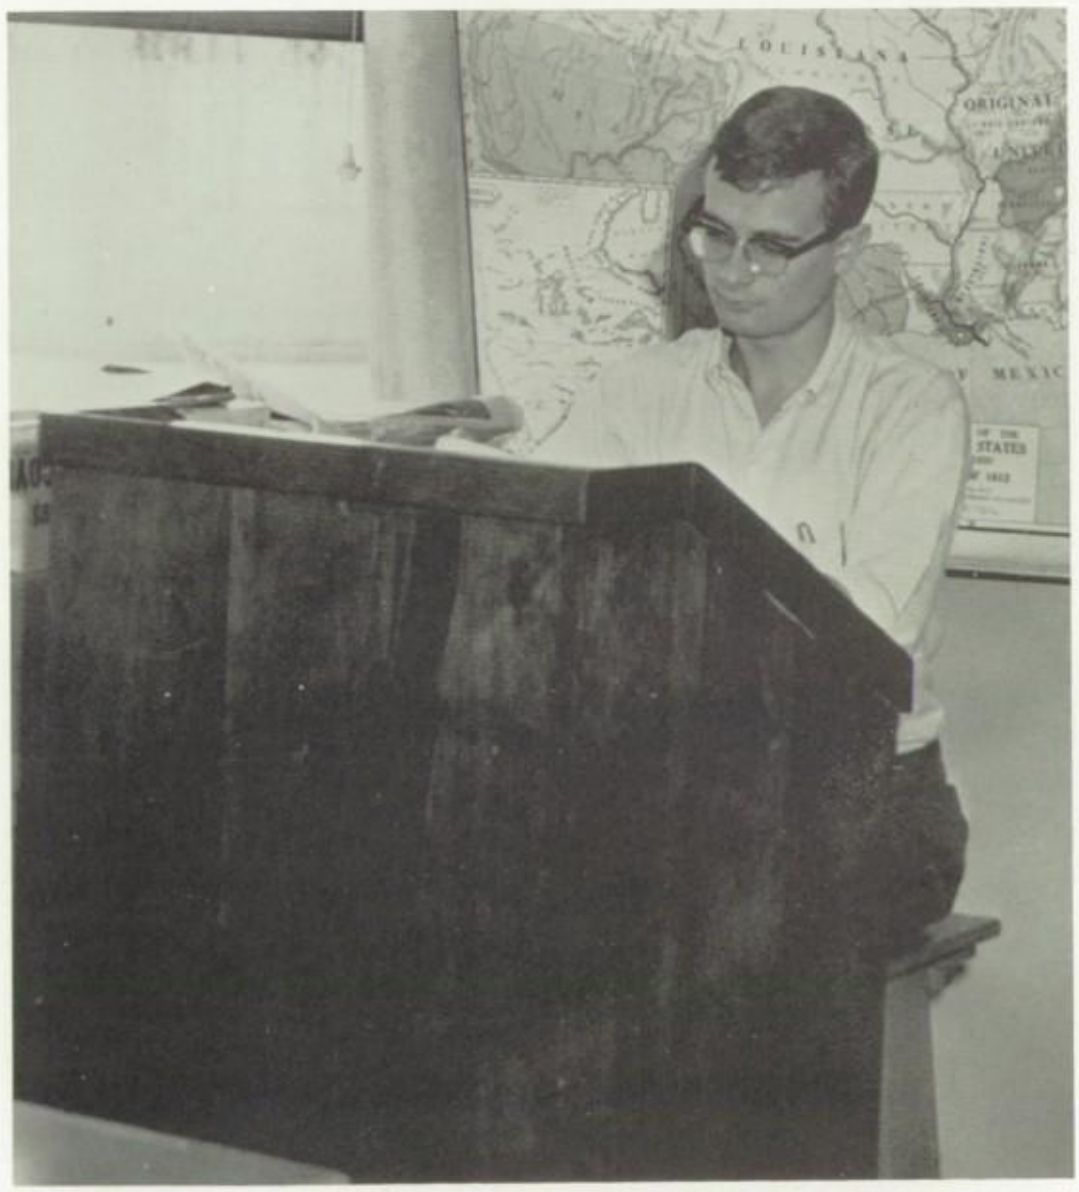
Hi-Y

Ever heard of the Hi-Y? It's a newly formed club which has taken the place of the Key Club. Led by Mr. McIssac, its members can be seen taking an active part in our school activities. Besides helping to untangle and guide students during assemblies, they have checked coats at school dances and have contributed their aid at programs put on by various parents' organizations. A football or basketball game would not have been complete without a few of the boys around to keep order.

Besides working hard at school, the club has participated in local conferences and has made trips to the Y.M.C.A. for swimming and other activities.

This is the hard-working Hi-Y club. Keep up the good work!



Stage Crew

"Dim those footlights. I said the footlights, not the spot."

"Hey, somebody get that curtain."

Though few people realize it, this type of conversation is carried on behind the stage during every assembly, lyceum, play, and performance in Hampton's auditorium. The stage crew is invaluable to any organization wishing to present a program of any type on stage. Sponsored by Mr. Suder, this group gives its members valuable experience in backstage work. Thus, it is seen that the stage crew members receive only a very small fraction of the credit which they deserve for their labors. Obviously, they play a large part in the success of each performance.

Hamptonian

Roll the Presses!!! . . . Many deadlines have been encountered by the HAMPTONIAN staff this year. Not only has the HAMPTONIAN appeared in the News-Record, but the staff has originated the now well known "ONION."

The staff has participated in many outside journalistic activities. "Viewing Big Moe" was one of the main events which occurred during National Newspaper Week when the staff toured the Pittsburgh Press Building.

"How Your Paper Is Produced" was the main theme for the presentation in the showcase, which appeared this year, indicating the steps taken in the production of the newspaper.

They are also active members of the Junior Press Club and attend many of their activities.

It has been a busy but enriching year for the staff—one of great progress in the Field of Journalism.

Future Teachers

The Future Teachers of America, under the capable direction of Mr. Weckerly, is a worthwhile club. Its membership is comprised of approximately forty students who are interested in the field of teaching. Besides discussing the teaching profession at club meetings, the members visit various state colleges and local special schools as a group.

At the annual open house at Hampton, the Future Teachers perform ushering duties. In the spring each student is given the opportunity to student teach either at the high school or at one of the elementary schools.

Varsity Club

Only two more quarters I'll be in."

"You're in pretty good shape. I still have six to go, and I don't see how I'm going to get them in before the end of the season."

Creating strong bonds and greater understanding between its members, Varsity Club is quite important not only to those who belong, but to those who strive to attain membership.

Mr. Fridley, Joe Coppick, Pat Boylan, Al Lovgren.

You probably saw Algerians and Saudi Arabians while pushing through the halls this past year and never even realized they weren't Hampton High School students. That's contradictory, because they were students except for two days in the early spring. Then they became the honorable United Nations representatives from Albania and Saudi Arabia. Confusing? Not half so confusing as sitting in the midst of the General Assembly of the forty-six school-one hundred-eleven nation Student UN conclave, and trying to follow what transpired. The SUN Society of Hampton, with its fifteen senior and five junior members, apparently felt it was well worth six months of sign painting and speech polishing to reach that position. In moments when it wasn't working for the mock UN or stirring interest in the real one, the Society also dreamed about going to New York. You can't keep international idealists down.

"What's that I smell? Oh! We're not in Gruman's Chinese Restaurant. It's the Senior High F.H.A. experimenting with chop suey."

Yes, under the direction of Mrs. Elsner, they promote the appreciation of the joys and satisfactions in homemaking.

Sponsoring a tea early in November for students and their mothers presented a fun-filled initiation party for new members.

To inform the students on activities and purposes relating to other local chapters, the club members attended a spring convention. After this stimulating meeting, the students came back with the feeling that they are top-notch homemakers; and they probably are.

Projection Club

The projection club has been of great service to our school by helping supplement classes and chapels with audio-visual aids. Guided by Mr. Hunt, the members have aided the teachers by operating the different machines. Often they have been seen rushing through the halls pushing a cart filled with record players and slide machines. Our hats are off to you for the efficient job you have performed.

Silversmiths

"Joe finished my ring, Mr. Casilli. Maybe next year I'll be able to pay for it."

Statements such as this are quite prominent when members of the Silversmith's Club assemble. Those people who are unable to study art as an elective subject, but who are interested in the craft lines, may join this club and work with jewelry and other art projects. Thus, the Silversmith's Club promotes better appreciation of art through actual working experience. Those students with very high ability may have their work entered in interscholastic art contests. In recent years, Hampton students have won many honors for themselves and for their school at these contests. Obviously, there are a great many students with high ability in our school, and the Silversmith's Club gives these people a chance to demonstrate their talents.

Student Council

. . . the voice of the student body

The most powerful organ which the students of Hampton have to express their opinions on administrative questions, the Student Council, is very often not given recognition for the important work it does. Under the very capable leadership of Mr. Hunt, the Student Council has always been one of the most respected and honored groups in Hampton. This organization performs most of its services through committees of student volunteers, but some are performed by the Student Council as a whole. The activities of this group include approving the organization of new clubs, organizing a group of hall monitors, approving dates for dances sponsored by other organizations, operating a book store, a candy store, and a lost and found department, and purchasing school equipment to be used by the students. It is easily seen that the Student Council is one of our most important organizations, and is capable of gaining even more importance with the help of the students.

Choir

No music department would be complete without a choir, and Hampton's choir is one of the finest in the area. At different district meets the choir has placed very highly. It performs for the school at Thanksgiving and Easter and has a yearly Christmas concert and Spring concert. This year a select group performed at the P.T.A. Talent Show.

Band

The Band, under the very capable direction of Mr. Tea, is one of the busiest organizations at Hampton. Besides marching at all the football games and numerous parades, the blue and gold prepares two concerts, the annual Christmas program and the Spring concert.

In addition to these functions the band performs at various community events.

With the help of the music boosters, the band has started a tradition at Hampton in which all qualifying juniors receive band blazers.

"It has been moved and seconded that the eighth period be abolished. Question?"

Yes, what goes on here?

Answer, the foregoing with the added amendment that study halls be also suspended is a perhaps not-so-fantastic proposition of the kind brought before the Junior High Student Council. The council acts as a sounding board of student opinion on many such administrative questions. Through its standing committee the Junior High Student Council also operates concession stands at Junior High sports events, and cooperates with the Senior High Student Council in providing the lunch-time book store and after-school candy counter. With sponsor Mr. Hohman, and two representatives from each home room; student council is advisory student government in Hampton.

Foreign Exchange Student

Maria Susana Aragon was a foreign exchange student at Hampton for two and a half months this winter. From Ibaque, Colombia, South America, a city in which her father has the sole Volkswagen dealership, Susie stayed at the home of Cheryl Yaman. She visited New York City, Washington, D. C., and Niagara Falls as well as Pitt and Penn State during her stay in the States.

Junior Class

September came and with it a cycle of events new to those of us who were Juniors. Advanced courses required additional homework to be done neatly and promptly. Responsibilities were heaped upon us. Many questions entered our minds. Would we be able to have a successful magazine sale? What theme should we use for the Junior-Senior Prom? When should we have the Twirp Dance? All too quickly, though, our Junior year ended, and, both hopeful and confident, we approached our Senior year.

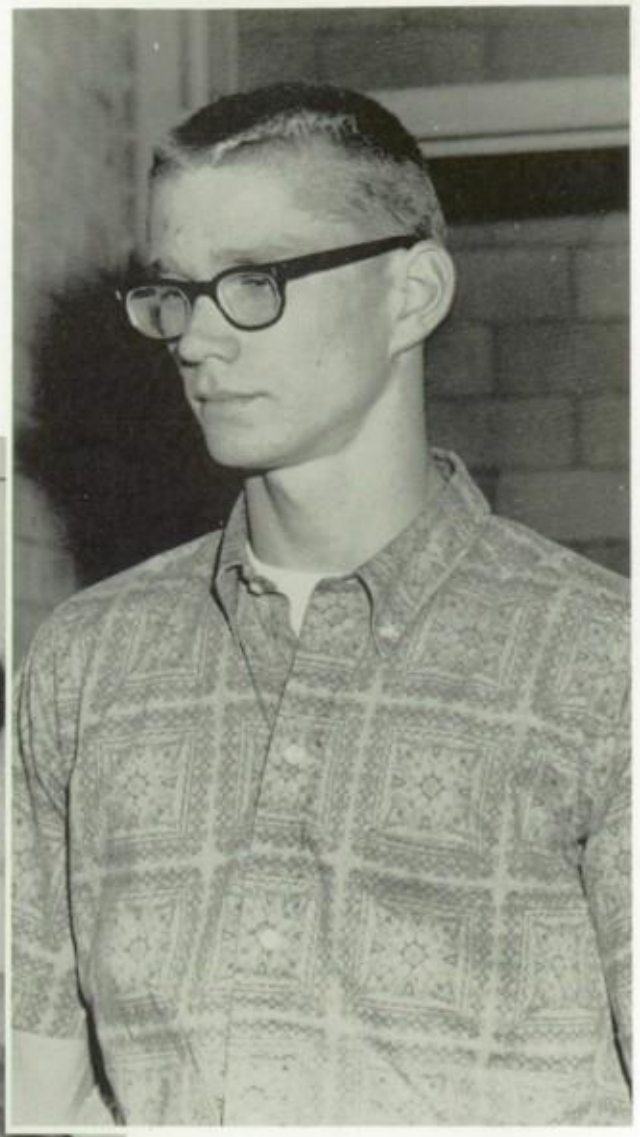
Sophomore Class



During their first year in senior high, the sophomores faced both opportunities and problems. This year they madė their final decision as to the course of study which they planned to follow. They carried their share of Hampton's highly accelerated academic program. In their hands rested responsibility for the Sophomore Senior Tea. But the sophomores took advantage of these opportunities and now look back on a happy and successful year.

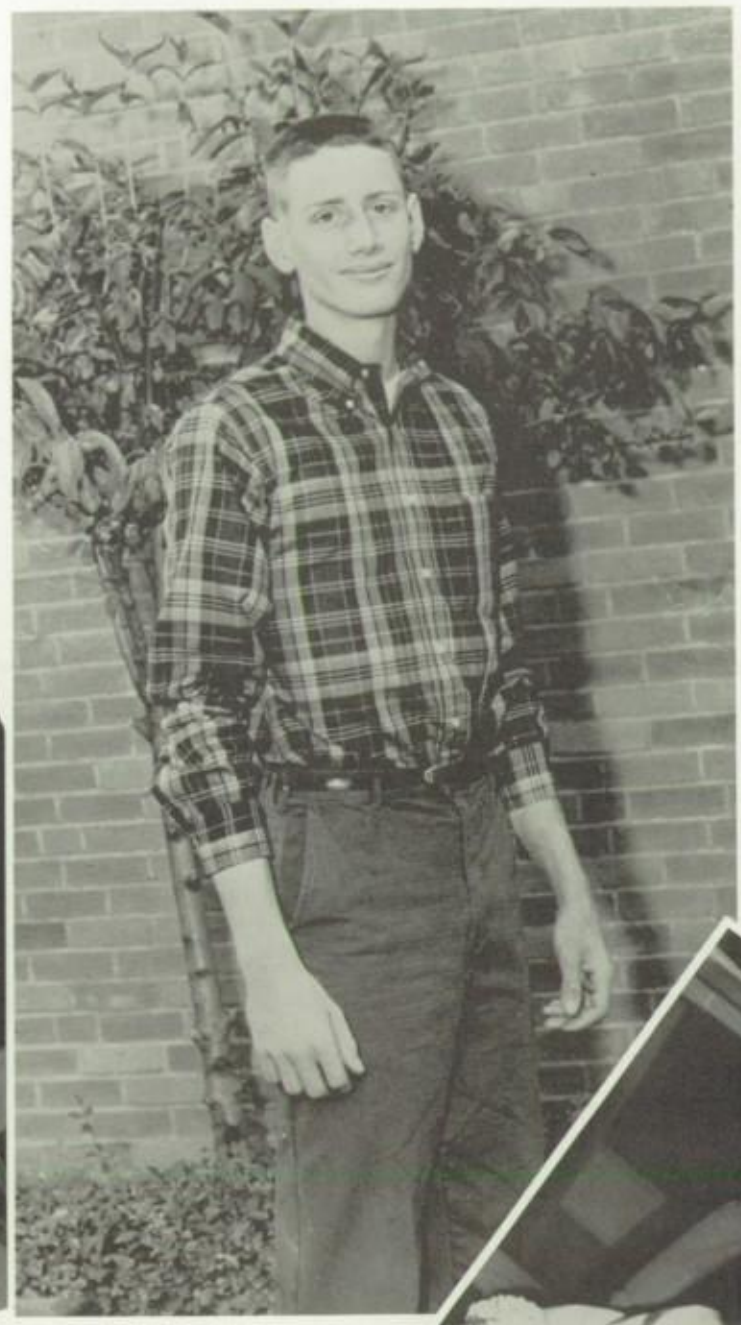
Freshman Class



Proudly dominating the Junior High, this ninth grade class, with their flair for enthusiasm, encouraged underclassmen to follow their example. The class possessed strong leadership, but its backbone was the individual student who participated vigorously in sports, studies, and activities.

The record of the two hundred freshmen is much to be admired.

Eighth Grade Class

Many trials were the lot of the eighth grade last year, but this year has found them "looking good." They have accepted the challenge of several courses which will enable them to do advanced work in eleventh and twelfth grades. No doubt, it will be difficult, but succeed they will, as the future leaders of Hampton High School.

"It's like coming into another world."
"Well, not really."
"Huh?"
"School's School."
"Yeah."

Junior High is nevertheless a large step away from the complacent, coddled world of sixth grade. There's a different teacher for every class . . . six daily trips from one end of the high school to the other (well it seems like six!) . . . step sessions (Gee, Mom, do I hafta?) . . . boys (of the ninth grade variety . . . mmm!) . . . girls (of the seventh grade variety . . . yech!) . . . all those big kids!! . . . detention hall . . . that first report card . . . the Beatles!!! . . . and all the other steps towards maturity. (?) The seventh grade class has plunged into this whirlpool with admirable, almost unbelievable nerve. There's a hope they may even be promising seniors someday.

Cheerleaders

"Take a V, add an I, try a C, TORY, V-I-C-T-O-R-Y, Victory, Victory, Victory, tonight!" yell the Junior High, Junior Varsity, and Varsity Cheerleaders. Not only do they cheer, but they spread school spirit throughout the student body. They have displayed all the characteristics needed to make good cheerleaders: namely, those of good sportsmanship, courtesy, cheerfulness, and diligent practice. During the football and basketball season, their fresh and cheerful smiles were seen at the games and the pep rallies leading us in the school cheers and the Alma Mater. Hard work and continuous practice is their motto. Under the leadership of Mrs. Michaels, they have formed a coordinated unit to present before our school. Many hours during the summer and after school made their cheering routines as perfect as possible. These hours of hard work have paid off, however; for their cheers are most original and are performed with unique style.

Hampton's high-stepping Majorettes delighted and amused the spectators this year as they marched down the gridiron during half-time shows.

There was delight as they performed original routines using newly acquired pom-poms which added variety and color to their attire.

There was amusement as the majorettes brought laughter to many viewers, especially at pep rallies. One of the most humorous was their rendition of the song, "Moving Out," as they "moved out" onto the gym floor dressed as tramps.

Under the direction of Mrs. Grace Bolinger, this small group worked hard, practiced regularly and did their best to bring enjoyment to the student body and community.

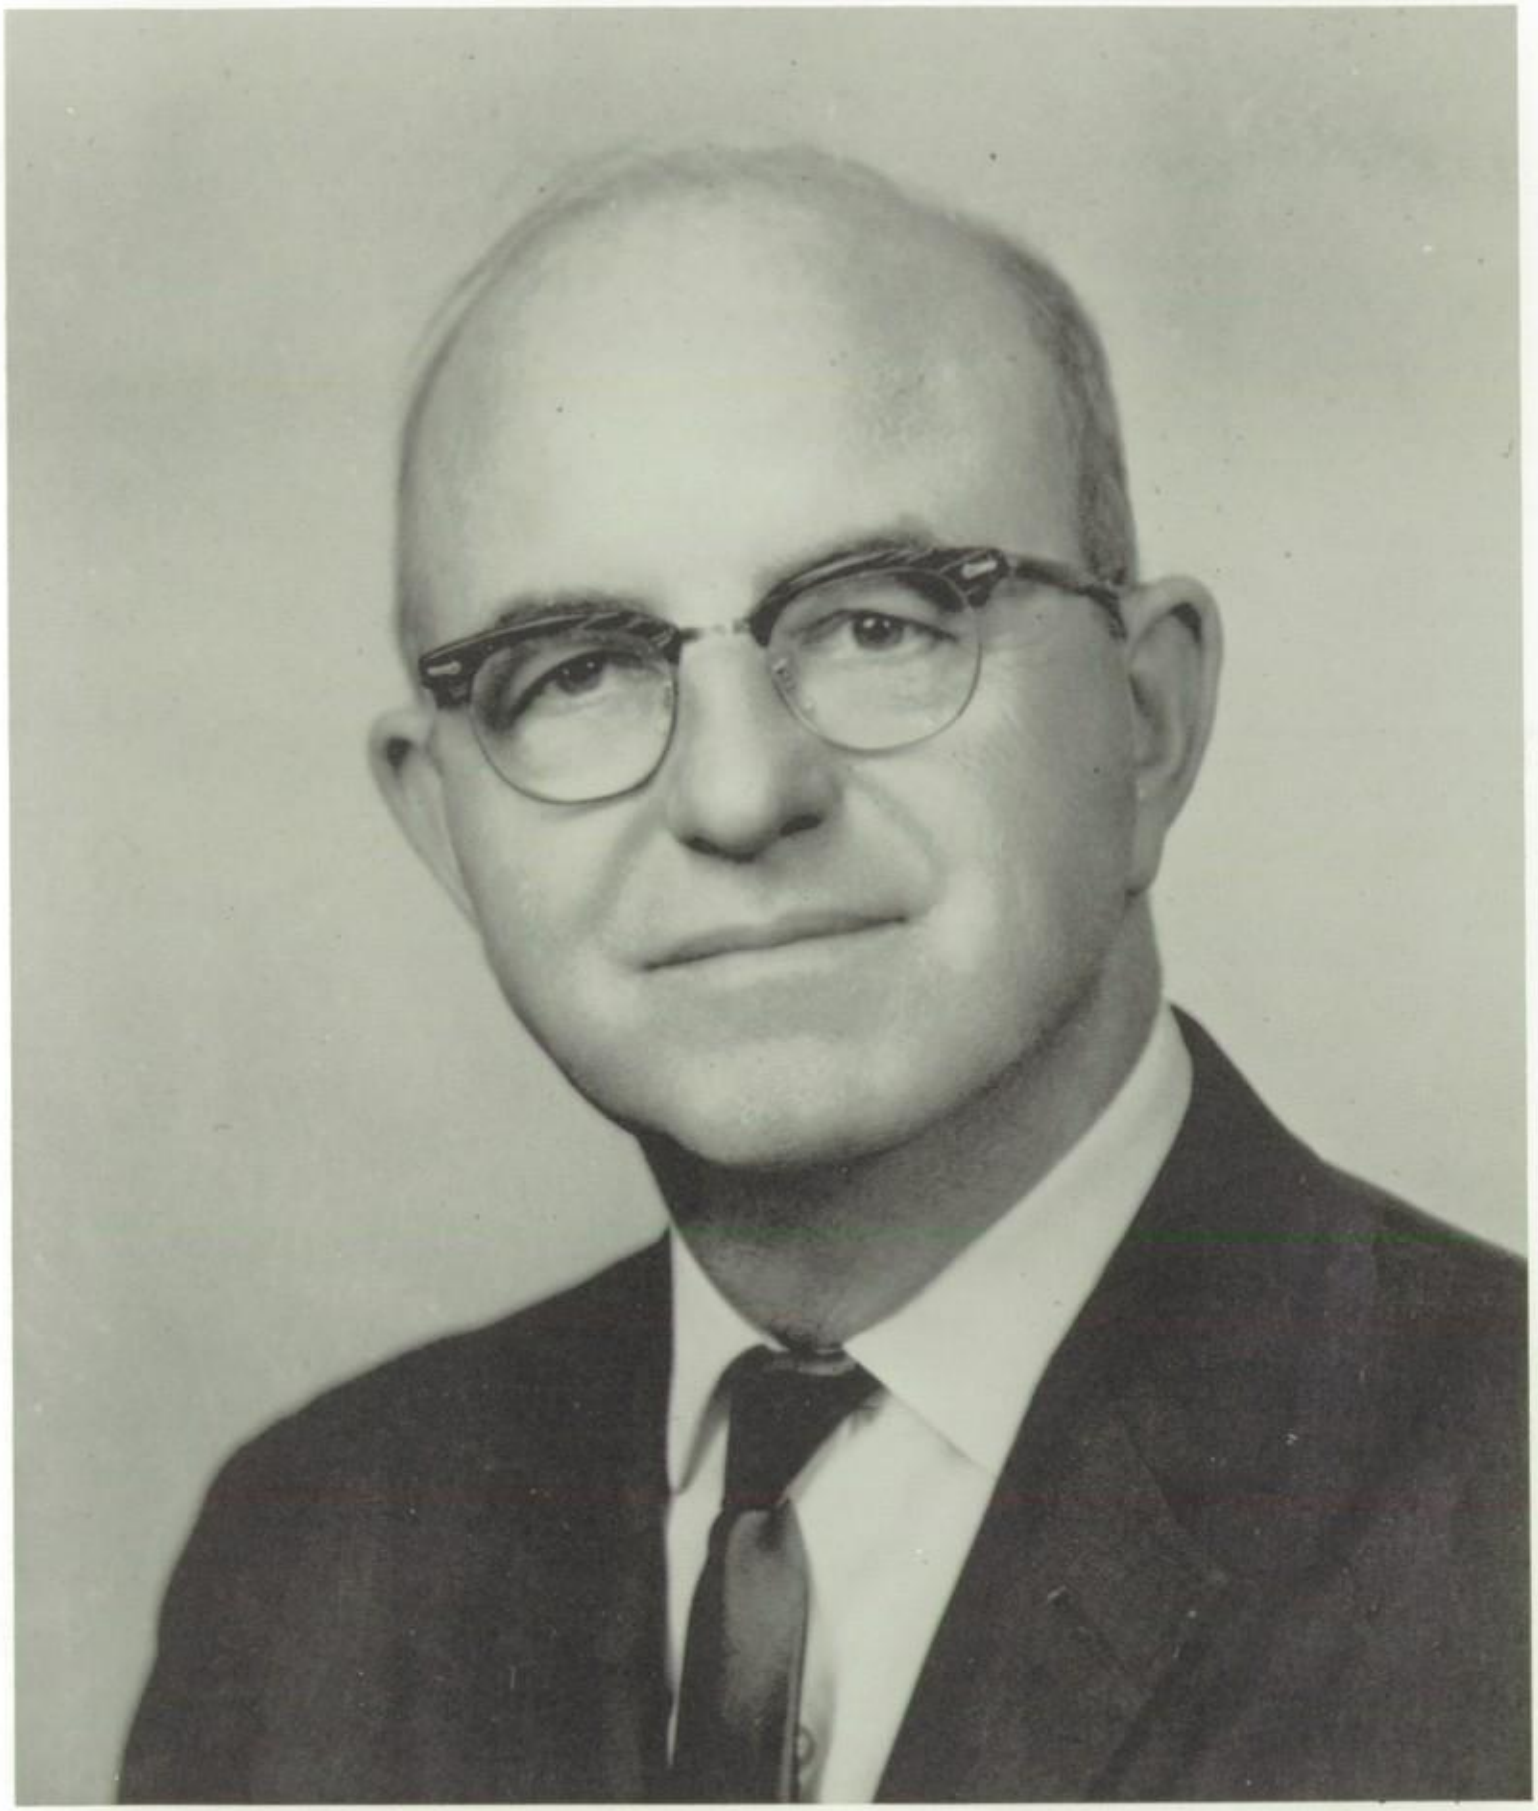
Faculty

Mr. Sarver



The supervising principal of Hampton, Mr. Sarver, throughout his many years here, has proved himself to be a capable administrator. Cordial and pleasant in his relations with students and faculty as well, Mr. Sarver's primary concern is the smooth physical operation of the schools. His dedication to the improvement of educational quality and his philosophy as an educator have helped to make Hampton a more democratic high school, in which students may not only gain knowledge, but also become responsible citizens.

Mr. Huber

Mr. Huber, a new member of the staff of administrators at Hampton this year, has assumed the demanding position of Principal. Everyone in the school has been well aware of his success.

He has evidenced patience and understanding of the problems that confront him and us. During his administration has come a revitalization of school spirit.

We realize what a credit Mr. Huber has been to the school and appreciate his guidance throughout the year.

Mr. Varnum

Although Mr. Varnum, like Mr. Huber, is a new member of the Administrative staff this year, the class of '64 recognizes him as a veteran teacher at Hampton. During our first year at the Jr.-Sr. High School, Mr. Varnum was our U.S. History teacher. Since that time, he has been a friend and counselor to many of us. This year he became Vice-Principal of the High School, a position which seems appropriate for him, since he is not only popular, but respected. We are all happy to see Mr. Varnum in his new position and feel that his addition to the Administrative staff is a valuable one.

"If x=2 and y=3, then x+y=2+3=7, and y−x=3−2=0. You see, students, Algebra is actually quite simple with only an elementary knowledge of grade school arithmetic." Although logic such as this is not heard from our teachers, many students seem to have great difficulty in finding any error. Actually, the Math Department is able to offer the student almost anything he is willing to take from his courses.

Thus, the general goals of this department are not only to qualify able people to enter the advanced placement program in college, but to offer all types of mathematics.

This year, the Math Department has introduced the School Mathematics Study Group Geometry course into the school curriculum. Last year, college math, programmed learning in Algebra I, and the SMSG course in seventh grade, which is to be continued up through each grade were also introduced. In addition to the new courses, the Math Department has made many general improvements. The textbooks which are now in use are greatly improved, and the homogeneous grouping now employed has many advantages. Many new visual aids and other instruments are being utilized, especially in the field of geometry. In general, the correlation between levels of subject matter is much greater so that students are able to proceed from elementary math to college in six years of logical sequence.

The science department, one of the larger departments of Hampton, includes such subjects as Biology, Chemistry, and Physics. The department has tried to show the theories and methods behind the mysteries of life and the world today. The teachers believe that it is necessary to know what makes things work and how they react in order to appreciate what we have.

Each section seems to be using the lab period to a greater extent. Biology field trips in the fall and spring allow students to compare the different varieties of plants and insects. Microscopes are constantly in use examining algae and microscopic animals. Chem labs show the student the reactions of certain chemicals, and also how different gases may be collected and tested. Physics labs allow the student to use sliderules in attacking the secrets of motion and gravity.

Recently the subjects of Physiology and World Geography have been added to the department. Physiology consists of the study of nutrition and the processes of living. The students learn the nomenclatures of the various bones of the body, the parts of the ear, eye, etc. The other department, World Geography, consists of the study of the physical features of the earth's surface. Rock formations, water currents, and the different geological eras are studied during the year.

An interesting event sponsored by the science department is the annual Science Fair in which every science student constructs a project and enters it in its field to be judged. These projects cover a great variety of subjects from handmade computers to a study on the nutrition of mice. The best projects from this fair are sent into Buhl Planetarium to compete in a science fair that includes schools throughout the Pittsburgh area.

"He speaks and writes five languages—he's obviously a product of Hampton's Language Department." Besides learning the fundamental grammar of these languages, students obtain good study habits, and even more important, good thinking habits during their stays at Hampton. The relationship between foreign languages and the English language is explored, with special emphasis placed upon the origins of many of the words we use today and upon the appreciation of foreign literature and culture. During the past year, opportunities were given to study new courses, such as Latin IV, Spanish IV, and German IV.

With the help of new and better textbooks, language tapes, and language laboratories, students certainly have an excellent opportunity of studying a great variety of foreign languages.

Reading and Library

The Library, under librarians Mrs. Bell and Miss Hanchett, is, of course, primarily concerned with making available reading materials and encouraging students to read. The celebration of National Library Week, the attractive displays in the library case, the constant influx of new and exciting books, all serve to awaken and foster an interest in reading fiction, biography, and poetry. A second function of the library is to provide reference materials—atlases, almanacs, encyclopedias, dictionaries, and back-date magazines as well as factual books to aid students in the preparation of research assignments.

In the Junior High, reading classes taught by Mrs. Beale help students build vocabulary and increase their reading speed and comprehension. She also gives remedial help to students with reading problems.

Hampton students are under the direction of a well organized Physical Education Department.

Mr. Fridley, Department Chairman, along with Miss Potkovich, Mrs. Wiley, and Mr. Dovey, conducts a rigorous phys ed program all year round, the aim of which is to improve the physical fitness of every student. Each student who participates gains a better understanding of game rules and regulations, and in addition develops his physical well-being.

The Department also distributes Varsity letters to those boys who are outstanding in basketball, football, wrestling, track, and golf. Additionally, in each of these fields an award is given annually to the most valuable senior.

Today's adolescent faces a world of confusions, uncertainties, and hazards that have grown out of a period of rapid and almost overwhelming change. To meet this world, an education of great scope and power is needed.

This education must be centered around a study of the communication arts and skills, because ultimate understanding must rest upon the ability to communicate.

The communication process is twofold: it involves both sending and receiving. The English Department assists Hampton students in the sending process of communication by teaching them skills of writing and speaking. It assists them in the receiving process by improving their ability to read and listen.

Classes have been divided into academic levels. This grouping system permits the teacher to plan his course according to ability. It aids the student in that the work given is keyed to his learning capacity. A modified unit system is used throughout the year. Using this, areas or topics are discussed and taught instead of specific book units.

The English Department aims not only to increase the knowledge and skills of Hampton students, but also to help them mature emotionally and to adjust themselves socially. They hope through this work to create an informed, mature, and harmonious citizenry that will serve its nation and its world.

There are many new and different sounds emanating from the music department. The band, headed by Mr. Charles Tea, has grown in size and instrumentation during this year. Piccolos have been added, and bass section has grown with the addition of a new Sousaphone plus three shiny horns. Mr. Tea has selected music that would bring out the best qualities of sound and tone in the band incorporating recent music, such as that from the Music Man. In addition to performing several concerts during the year, the band sent twenty-two members to perform in the annual Allegheny Valley Band concert together with the best student musicians from the schools in the Allegheny Valley area.

The choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Sadler, has also contributed to the musical program. This year, many new pieces were introduced, among them several songs that were recently composed by Mr. Sadler himself. One of the highlights of this year for the choir was the Western District Chorus. Carey McGiffin, Jim Gillner, and Noreen Costelli were sent to this chorus which was held at Bethel. Noreen Costelli, singing "Alleluia" by Mozart, was one of the six soloists chosen out of 120.

The art department, under the guidance of Mr. Cassilli and Mr. Dunlap, has attempted to provide an overall view of the field of art through creative and purposeful experiences with drawing and painting, printing methods, ceramics, sculpture, metal crafts, and jewelry.

The art program is required in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. However, should a student decide to continue in the study of art there are art classes which continue from ninth through twelfth grade. In these classes, there are advanced projects in such areas as ceramics and pottery.

For the past thirty-seven years, an annual Scholastic Art Awards Contest has been held to encourage students in creative arts. Hampton sent a selection of its best projects in jewelry, prints, and pottery, receiving a good share of the gold keys and placements in the contest.

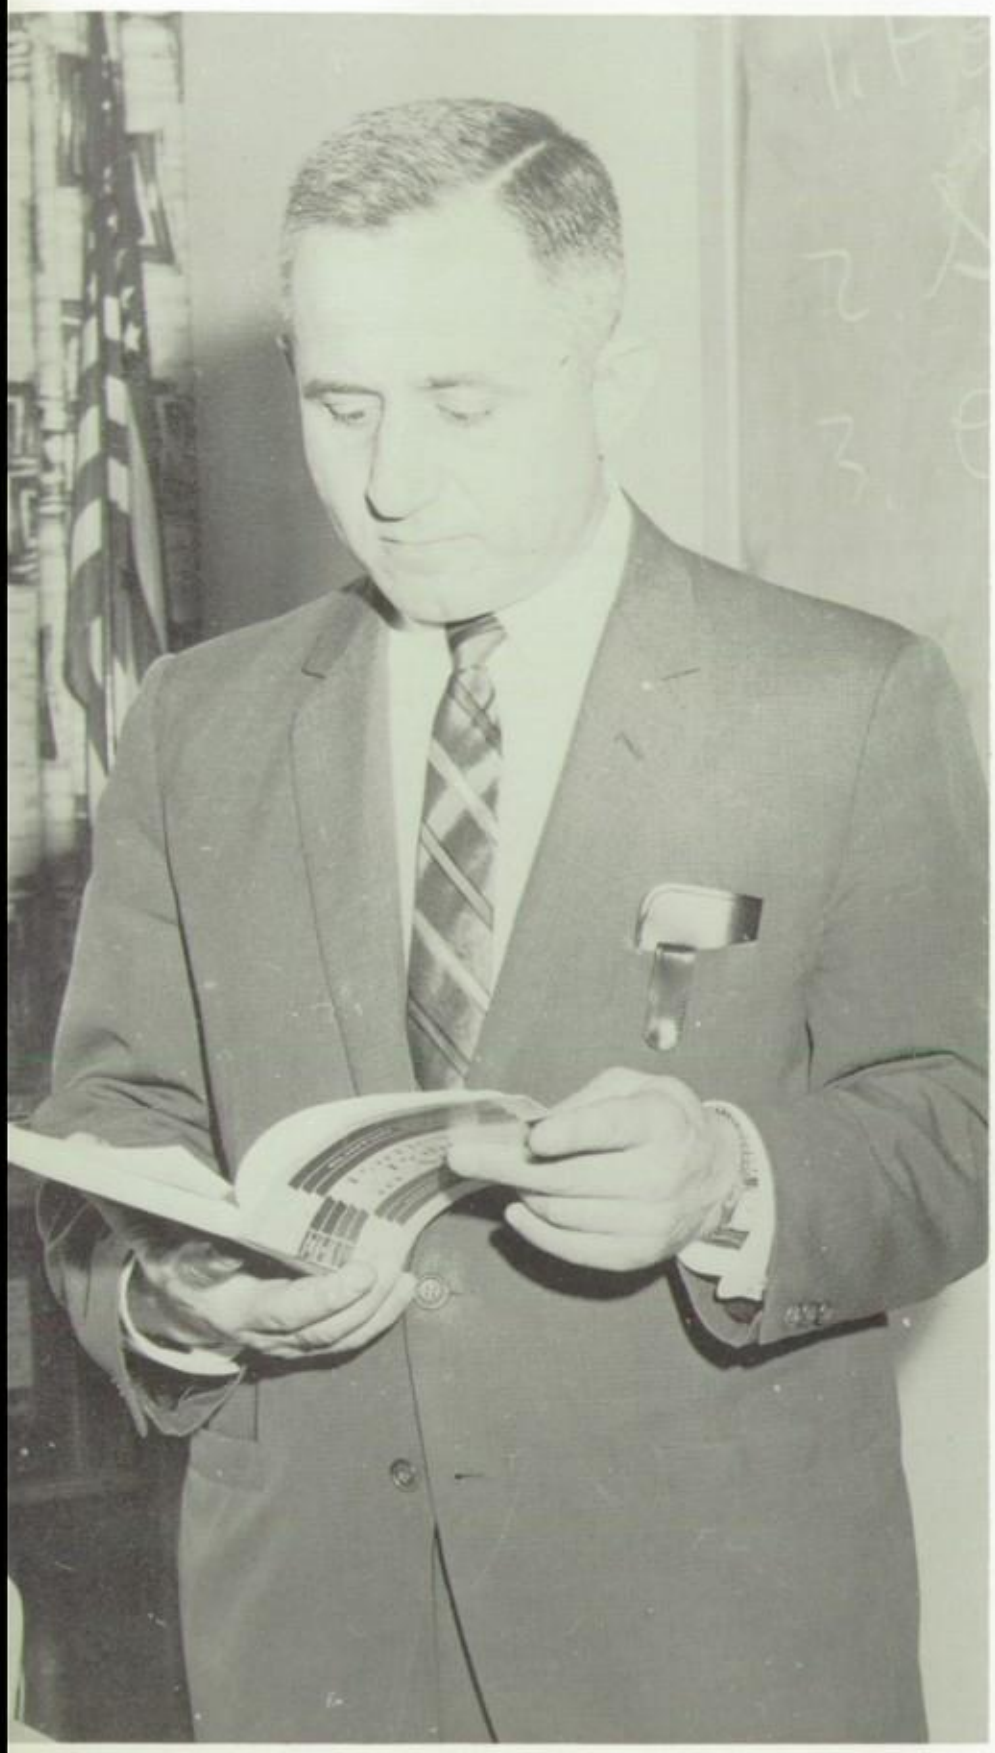
Practical Arts

Sanding . . . cutting . . . mixing . . . sewing . . . sketching . . . the students that have practical arts classes are learning to use their hands in creative efforts, as well as their heads. Individual student projects teach both the proper use of tools or appliances and the skill of following directions. Shop courses for boys include metal working, wood working, mechanical drawing and electrical shop. Girls' home economics courses are divided into sewing and cooking classes. Electives in practical arts for senior high help prepare students for careers or avocations.

History



HISTORY DEPARTMENT

The History department presents a sequential six year program covering world cultures and the record of man's past but stressing the history of the United States and the growth and function of its government. In seventh, eighth, and ninth grades students receive a survey of American history, World history, and Civics. In tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades the emphasis shifts to a deeper and more penetrating analysis of the various world cultures, the United States from the Civil War to the present, and the government of the United States. To further enrich the curriculum a specially designed course in Political Science has been added recently to meet the demands of the expanding academic program. Indeed we have a capable, qualified, and imaginative department which continually seeks to find new and better methods to stimulate and interest our students.

Commercial

Business students have attained an excellent reputation for themselves and for Hampton in the business world. Their high degree of business competency and background training in business subjects, together with attention to personal details, have resulted in many outstanding job opportunities. Each year most of the seniors are placed in jobs before graduation through a program of placement carried on by the Business Department.

Practical experience is part of each student's training. Secretarial and typing work for the administration and the teaching staff gives everyone an opportunity to apply his skill. In addition, each student—in good standing—accumulates hours of duty as a receptionist for the main office of the High School.
